

ONE MORE BODY FOUND.

SEARCH FOR A MISSING BROTHER IN THE RUINS ON THE FAIR GROUNDS.

FOURTEEN DEAD ALL TOLD FROM MONDAY'S DISASTER—FOUR PEOPLE MISSING AND SUSPENDED TO BE IN THE RUINS—ANOTHER FIREMAN DIES.

Chicago, July 12.—To-day's work in the ruins brought by Monday's fire resulted in the finding of one more body, the mass of flesh being brought to light by the men in the employ of the World's Columbian Exposition management, but through the efforts of the two brothers of the victim. The body found was that of R. A. Drummond, superintendent of the Hartel Electric Company. David and Robert Drummond were upon the scene at 7 o'clock this morning expecting aid in the prosecution of the search for the body of their brother which the men have asserted ever since the fire would be found near the stack, but only twelve men appeared to begin work, and these were taken to another part of the ruins by their foreman, where they worked during the day. As soon as the brothers saw that no efforts were being made to search near the stack they threw off their coats and went to work in the heat of the burning sun. About 4 o'clock the brothers lifted a huge joist, under which they perceived parts of a human body. It proved to be their brother.

Another man will probably be added to the list of dead whose bodies are charred to unrecognizable masses in the ruins of the cold storage pavilion. The latest report of the missing indicates that Robert E. Blenheimer, a Marquette, Mich., capitalist, is among the number. Mr. Tergett, of Crawford, Ill., with whom Mr. Blenheimer was staying while visiting the Fair, called at the morgue to-day in hopes of finding some trace of his missing guest. He was not successful. Mr. Blenheimer reached Chicago some days ago from Marquette, and had spent most of his time at the Fair grounds. He was specially interested in cold storage plants, and was planning an investment Monday morning he left Crawford, telling Mr. Tergett that he should spend the day inspecting the cold storage pavilion. Mr. Blenheimer is about thirty-five years of age, five feet eight inches in height, and of dark complexion. A man answering his description, even to the brown suit and negligee shirt which he wore, was seen near the building at 11 o'clock.

Louis J. Frank, a pipe-man, who jumped from the tower, died this morning at the hospital in the Fair grounds. The weary search of the ruins of the cold storage building still continues, but with poor success. The terrible confusion of the wreckage, caused by the network of iron and rods, makes the work laborious and slow, and the search can hardly be completed before the end of the week. A rumor that eleven more bodies had been discovered in the ruins was untrue, and appears to have been founded on the discovery of a large amount of refrigerator meat, dead sheep, that had fallen in a heap after the fire and was mistaken for human bodies.

This morning the total number of known dead is fourteen, while those reported by their friends as missing number three. The following persons, in addition to the known dead, are still missing: Joseph Campbell, a carpenter, seen in the building a few moments before the tower fell; Archie MacArthur, ten years old, employed in the building, seen near the elevator just as the tower fell; Bernard Murphy, boiler-maker, seen to enter the building after it was on fire.

As to the responsibility for the catastrophe, there seems to be a wide difference of understanding between the architect who made the plans for the cold storage structure and the management of the Hercules Iron Works, who built and owned the building. Architect Burman says that if the iron had been constructed in accordance with his plan the fire would never have started, and that the Hercules Iron Works had been told repeatedly by himself and many others as to the danger of allowing such discharge of smoke and steam. The point that was actually thirty inches lower than the top of the dome of the building, Manager McDonald of the Hercules Iron Works, said, "I believe it was never put in place, although it is said that the material for its construction was on the ground." The iron had been away from the top of the cold storage as it had done when, before the falling beams began to drop down alongside the stack to the bottom of the shaft. This accounts for the sudden bursting out on all sides of the fire which destroyed the tower and sent the flames to death.

ONE OF THE VICTIMS FROM BRIDGEPORT.

Bridgeport, Conn., July 12.—Henry Wylie, nineteen years old, of this city, was one of those killed in the Chicago fire on Monday. He had been in that city about two months and was employed about the Fair grounds. He, with others, went to add the firemen. His identity was discovered by a belt which he was bearing the initials, "H. W." When his parents read that a body with such a belt had been found, they were almost certain that the victim was their son, and a telegram last night confirmed their suspicions.

GOOD SPORT AT PITTSBURG.

SEVERAL FAVORITES DEFEATED IN FAST-TIME POINTER FALLS DEAD.

Pittsburgh, July 12 (Special).—With the two races postponed from yesterday there were five to be decided at the Grand Circuit in the morning. In the unfinished 2:15 race Mrs. Cain started a strong favorite. Bad rating probably cost her the race. Borash drove her to the half in 1:04, pumping the little mare out so that she could not finish, and Alvin Swift came along and easily beat her home in 2:15.

Samuel Seely's Madewell performance made her a favorite in the two-year-old class, but she met a better field than that which she defeated last week and had chances was never good. Carlis Long, a colt from the Corinth Ranch in California, went out in front and never headed during the race. It was in 1:04 and never headed.

The 2:15 race for three-year-olds was won by Wardens, a mare, finished gamely in 2:13:4. This heat victory decided the race. Mata Wilkes' winning performance to square in 2:14:4 and 2:17.

The Monongahela House purse of $2,500 brought seventeen entries to the post with Elsie's Pointer, Complex and George Sherman all backed to win. The last named struck a tendon just as Andrews got him into the lead in the opening heat, and was withdrawn. Complex won the race in three heats. Elsie's Pointer fell dead just beyond the wire at the end of the final heat. He was a two-horse owner at Indianapolis.

Darkest Suspicions, the free-for-all race could be muted.
